Testimony: Aloha Councilmembers, It is past time for drivers and the public to understand safety that involves multimodal forms of transportation. On Oahu, as new projects aim to improve roadway safety, it is incumbent on drivers, who wield the most dangerous object on the road, to learn about and adhere to the rules of the road. Safety not only involves interactions between cars but also requires deep understanding of how cars are especially dangerous to alternate forms of transit. It is a common-sense resolution that simply ensures that drivers are aware of how their vehicles can be dangerous to other roadway users.
